Excerpt: . running submerged it was breakfast time, and the officers of the submarines then in port had gathered round one end of the long dining table in the wardroom of the mother ship. Two or three who had breakfasted early had taken places on a bench along the nearer wall and were examining a disintegrating heap of English and American magazines, whilst pushed back from the table and smoking an ancient briar, the senior of the group read the wireless news which had just arrived that morning. The news was not of great importance. The lecture done with, the tinkle of cutlery and silver, which had been politely hushed, broke forth again. What are you doing this morning, Bill? said one of the young captains to another who had appeared in old clothes. Going out at about half past nine with the X10. (The X10 was a British submarine.) Just going to take a couple of shots at each other. What are you up to? Oh, I've got to give a bearing the once over, and then I've got to write a bunch of letters. Wouldn't you like to come with us? said the first speaker, pausing over a steaming dish of breakfast porridge. Be mighty glad to take you. Indeed I would, I replied with joy in my heart. All my life long I have wanted to take a trip in a submarine. That's fine! We'll get you...
